"What?" The young man was now quite puzzled. "My name is Kali, What's your name?" "Ivan" "Ivan, pleased to meet you." "I'm Sheba, nice to meet you Kali." I tried to stand, but I was overwhelmed by pain. I gave out a small moan of pain. "Are you alright?" Sheba asked with concern. "I'm just fine." I lied. "Just a little scratch." I held my leg in pain. I lifted my pant leg, I was bleeding badly. "I think we should take you a healer Kali." Ivan was now also concerned. "No, it's okay, I don't want to cause you any trouble." "You're bleeding, bleeding badly." Sheba gave me a look of great concern. I gave in to them. "Fine, I'll go." We left the docks into a large field or valley of some sort. There were trees, bushes and small animals around. Storm clouds filled the sky, it was beginning to rain.
